HISTORIA

This painting was acquired by the Cuban Carlos Francisco Javier del Valle Grao, who removed his paintings from the museum in 1932 and took them with him to La Habana in Cuba. The Cuban government seized the work along with two others from the series, Saint Joachim (San Joaquín) and Saint Anne (Santa Ana) in 1965. According to its owner, it then travelled to Russia, and was subsequently acquired by unknown means by a private collection in Madrid before finally being acquired by the Government of Aragón in 1999.

ANÁLISIS ARTÍSTICO

According to a written description by Ricardo del Arco (1915), this composition was located at one of the far ends of the front wall of the oratory.

Its inclusion in the iconographic programme of the oratory is explained by the fact that it is a particularly popular saint in Valencia, the home region of the Countess of Sobradiel.

The saint is shown on one knee against a dark, neutral background, in three-quarters pose and facing the viewer's right, although her head is turned in the opposite direction. She is dressed in the habit of her order, with her right hand raised towards the upper left-hand corner of the composition. A faint ray of light emanating from that corner illuminates her face, which is framed by a yellowish halo. Her clothes are executed with some well-defined folds.

As in the case of the other three small format paintings, this work is characterized by energetic, sketchy brushstrokes which are somewhat careless but extremely expressive and lend the figures an impressive sense of volume through the use of light and colour.
